Answer the questions.

Money for the University Art Club

Can you help?

Our university art club needs money for our activities this year. We need money for things like trips to museums. We usually go to art museums four times a year and we choose a different museum each time. We see a lot of different kinds of art, and I think it's really useful for studying art.

We have special days when members of our club do different things to get money for the club. The first-year students wash cars in the park in town. People usually pay them £10.00 for each car. And they usually wash a lot of cars so they get a lot of money!

The second-year students make cakes and bring them to the park and the student centre at the university where people can buy them. They make the cakes themselves and sometimes their families help them. The cakes are usually £5.00 each and the students also make tea or coffee for people to have with the cake. Tea costs only £1.00 and coffee's £2.00.

Third-year and fourth-year students also go to the park. There, they draw or paint pictures of people. It only takes about 15 minutes to draw a person's picture. For £20.00, you can have a black-and-white picture. Or for £25.00, you can get a picture in colour.

We usually get about £600 on our special art club days. It's hard work, but it's fun, too.

If you want to help us, please come to the town centre next Saturday, 28th June. We can wash your car, you can have a coffee and some cake while you wait, and we can even paint your picture!

- 1) Why do university art club need money?
- 2) How often do they go to the art museums?
- 3) What do the 1st - year student do in order to raise money for the club?
- 4) Is the cake and a cup of tea expensive if you buy them from the second-year student?
- 5) What do the students of the 3rd and of the 4th year do in the park?
- 6) How much money does the art club raise during the special day?

1) They need money for things like trips to museums.

2) They usually go to art museums four times a year and each time they always choose a different museum.

3) The first-year students wash cars in the park in town. And they usually wash a lot of cars so they get a lot of money.

4) No, they aren't. The cakes are usually £5.00 each and the students also make tea or coffee for people to have with the cake. Tea costs only £1.00 and coffee's £2.00.

5) Third-year and fourth-year students draw or paint pictures of people there.

6) They usually get about £600 on their special art club days.

7) I can come to the town centre next Saturday, 28th June.

8) Yes, I do. I think that they do not only gather some money but they also have fun.

9) I might build up the stages or special rooms for them in the parks or I could write an article about them in the local newspaper.

7) When can you participate and help the club paying for their service? 8) Do you like the idea of raising money in such a way? 9) If you were a student of this club, how could you help them?

Read the article and answer the questions.

While multi-generational living is normal in many cultures, in some countries such as Britain and the US, it isn't very usual. However, homes where grandparents live with their children and their families in the same house are becoming more common in these countries because of the economic climate. Here, the members of one extended family explain how it works for them.

Georgina – Anna's grandmother

I was really pleased when my son wanted to move back home. I love spending time with Anna, my granddaughter. She's a lovely little girl at the minute – so happy and affectionate – everybody who meets her likes her. It will be wonderful to watch her grow up. I think even my unsociable husband is enjoying it! We eat together twice a week and, once a month, we have a family conference – my husband and I, my son and his wife – to discuss how things are going. We try to respect each other's space. Having my son here makes me less anxious about the future, too. At the moment, we're healthy, but in a few years we're going to need more help.

Esther – Anna's mother

Actually, it's all working out well! My mother-in-law remembers what it's like to have young children, so she's very patient with Anna and sympathetic to me when I'm tired. She often just says: 'Go and rest. I'll look after her'. I think she wants to give advice about what Anna eats and what time she goes to bed, but she usually says nothing! And occasionally I ask her opinion and find her ideas are really sensible. We are all learning to be quite honest with each other, which I think is a good thing.

Chris – Anna's grandfather

I prefer a quiet life and a tidy house, and I think young people should be independent, but my wife loves having the family here. From a selfish point of view, it's good for me too because Georgina is quite talkative and now she can chat to her daughter-in-law. I think it's a very satisfactory situation for everyone concerned!

Alan – Anna's father

I was worried because my mother can be bossy, but actually, she is being sensitive and we're lucky to have a reliable babysitter in the house!

My dad is sometimes moody, but he's very affectionate with Anna. We're planning to buy our own house in a couple of years, but I think we'll stay near my parents because the relationship between Anna and her grandparents is so special. 1) Why is the situation with the life of grandparents together with their children under one roof changing in the UK and the USA? 2) Is Georgina happy about living together with her son? 3) How does Georgina describe her granddaughter? 4) Is Esther happy about staying together with her mother-in-law? 5) What qualities does Esther mention in order to live in peace together? 6) Does Chris like to live together under one roof? 7) How does Chris describe his mum? 8) How does Chris describe his dad?	1) The situation is becoming more common in these countries because of the economic climate. 2) Yes, she is happy, because having her son makes her less anxious about the future. Answer the question. What special talents or skills do you have?	Well, suppose. I have a great deal of patience and stamina. My parents have always told me that these are the keys to my success and I can achieve everything with these traits.
Answer the question. What is your position in the family? How does it affect your personality?	I am the youngest of the family that is why I think I am self-confident, somehow spoilt and lazy maybe. I know that each member of my family loves me despite anything.

My holiday disaster

Although I work in the centre of London now, I like going to the mountains when I can. Last winter I decided to spend a week in Scotland. I wanted to go skiing and walking in the mountains. I looked on the internet and booked a cottage (a small house) for a week. One Friday night last November, I packed my bags, went to Heathrow airport, and waited to get on a plane to Inverness.

Then the problems started. The plane didn't leave that night. There was a lot of snow in Scotland and they closed Inverness airport. So I spent the night in Heathrow. I drank a lot of tea and read a lot of newspapers. I tried to sleep but I wasn't comfortable. Next morning, Inverness airport opened again, and we arrived in Scotland. But my bags weren't there.

I hired a car and drove to the cottage. It was a twenty-minute drive from the airport. When I arrived, there was a family with two little children in the cottage! They booked on the internet, too – for the same week. The family was very kind. They said I could sleep in the lounge, and they cooked dinner for me.

Next day, I got my bags from the airport and decided to go skiing. But the mountain road was closed because of the snow. I didn't ski and I didn't go walking in the mountains. I spent the week in the cottage waiting to go home – it wasn't my favourite holiday!

Mudlarking in London

Few hobbies combine collecting Roman artefacts, medieval coins, and discovering bodies. But the very British hobby of mudlarking is making a comeback.

Mudlarking is a pastime that has become more popular in the last few years in London. It involves going to the River Thames at low tide and digging in the mud for valuable objects. A person who goes mudlarking is called a mudlark.

Mudlarking has its origins in 18th-century London. But in those days, it wasn't a hobby at all. It was actually a way for many children – and those too old to be employed – to survive. This was at a time when there were hardly any bridges crossing the river, so most people caught boats across. Getting on and off the boats, people dropped things. These were then found by mudlarks, the poorest level of society, who sold them to earn money, which would hopefully be just enough for a meal.

Steve Brooker is a modern-day mudlark and he's had this unusual hobby for 30 years. He's found everything from glass bottles and clay pots, to coins dating from Roman times right up to the present day. He says he has found many extraordinary things, but finding a human skeleton was particularly terrifying. He later found out the bones were 300 years old, but even so, it's an experience he is happy he hasn't repeated.

Steve often goes to the river near where he lives, but on the day I met him, he accompanied me in my boat to the east of the city. Steve was excited because he hadn't had a boat for a few years, and this meant he could reach an area where he hadn't been for some time. 'Getting caught out by the tide is a real danger,' Steve explains. He advises us, as he does with anyone he has guided on the river, to watch for the water level and always have an escape route. We appear to be ok and our boat is our way on and off the Blackwall foreshore.

Apart from a permit, the only tools required for mudlarking are a bucket and something to dig with. At 25°C, we are lucky with the weather, but even on rainy days, keen mudlarks can be found by the water's edge. 'Every day, as the water level rises and falls it moves objects in the mud,' explains Steve. 'So it's possible to find really good things any time of the year.' Steve quickly fills his bucket with coins, Victorian pipes, old keys, and even a jar that he says came from an old food factory that used to be nearby. He knows exactly where to look and hardly digs down at all. After an hour, his top object is a metal toy from the 1800s. Much of what he finds goes to local museums. 'That's what anyone who goes mudlarking usually does,' says Steve.

Steve explains why the river mud holds such treasure. 'It is anaerobic, which means it doesn't hold air. Therefore, anything in it stays in great condition,' he says. 'Once they are opened up to the air, however, their condition starts to break down, so mudlarking is all about keeping things that would otherwise fall to pieces'.

Read the text and answer the questions. A Step In The Right Direction It was once famously said that some things in life – like paying taxes and death – are inevitable. And leaving education trying to find employment is something that young people everywhere have to face. But despite the large amount of research that has been undertaken on young people in the job market, relatively little is known about what happens once young people start their first job. A team of researchers from Leeds Metropolitan University looked into this aspect. The survey focused on 30 people and 39 employers, and addressed a range of issues in relation to recruitment, employment, and particularly young people into the workplace. It is clear from the interviews with young people that, for the vast majority, the idea of a 'job for life' no longer exists. While some had clear career ambitions, the majority appeared to be unclear on what they wanted to do. One consequence of this is that many young people saw their early work experiences as temporary – a 'stop gap' until their ideas on what they wanted to do had developed, or simply a way of earning money to pursue other ambitions such as travel.

This tendency has also been noted by many employers, and is particularly disappointing to smaller businesses looking for long-term loyalty in their staff. However, some employers – for example in areas such as financial services and call centres – had adjusted to the new situation, and appeared to accept that they cannot expect young people to be loyal and see a long-term future with one employer.

Like a number of other studies, the findings confirm that employers tend to focus on 'softer' skills and behavioural qualities in the recruitment process, with a less prominent role played by formal qualifications. The opinions of this sample of young people were remarkably consistent with those of the employers. Most of the young people seemed to have understood the message that formal qualifications are often a necessary but not sufficient condition for obtaining the types of jobs which they hope to do in the future. They recognized that skills like communication, team-working, organization, and customer service are all important. There was evidence that many young people had clearly worked on developing such skills.

Where there does appear to be a significant difference of opinion between the views of young people and employers related to the extent to which young people actually possess the necessary 'employability' skills. By and large, the young people interviewed were confident in their ability to demonstrate these skills and qualities. Employers, on the whole, were much less positive about this, often feeling that educational institutions were focusing too strongly on academic skills and qualifications, at the expense of employability.

Another area where employers' and young peoples' views differed is in relation to Information Technology (IT) skills. When asked about the things they value most about young recruits, many employers mentioned their ability with computers. On the other hand, few young people mentioned this explicitly. The probable explanation is that young people simply take their IT skills for granted, often not realizing how valuable they might be to some employers. Encouraging young people to be more positive about this aspect might help some to improve the way they are viewed by potential employers.

In terms of the inductions provided for their young recruits, the results of this study confirmed both expectations and the findings of earlier research – that employers vary widely in the nature of the training they provide. Differences included the length of time the inductions ran, how formal the training was, what topics were covered, and how often training occurred. The reaction of most young people to the induction they had experienced was positive, or at least neutral. There is clearly a tension between the need for new recruits to become good at their jobs, and their understandable desire to get involved as quickly as possible.

From the point of view of the employer, much depended upon the nature of the job, the type of employer (particularly size and sector), and the frequency with which they recruit young people. In general, the more regularly young people were recruited and the larger the employer, the more formal the induction process. In uncertain economic times, it seems that young people more than ever are having to do all they can to find employment.

1) What is the most common problem young people have while their studies?

2) Is it enough information about the experience of the young people at their first workplace?

3) What was the research from Leeds Metropolitan University about?

1) The most common problem for young people during their studies was the question of leaving the studies for the work.

2) No, it isn't. There is little research about their experience.

3) The research from Leeds Metropolitan University was about recruitment, employment, and the experience of the young people at the workplace.

4) Is the idea of a 'job for life' for young people still popular? 5) Has everyone got a clear view of what they would like to do in the future? 6) Has the early work experience become permanent for many young people? 7) Is this tendency supported by the smaller businesses or other employers? 8)What are the priorities for the employers while recruiting young employees? 9) What priorities do the young employees find searching for the job?	4) No, it isn't popular anymore. 5)No, they haven't. While some had clear career ambitions, the majority appeared to be unclear on what they wanted to do. 6) No, it hasn't. Many young people see their early work experiences as temporary – a 'stop gap' until their ideas on what they wanted to do had developed, or simply a way of earning money to pursue other ambitions such as travel. 7)No, it isn't. For this reason many employers tend not to employ young people. 8) The findings confirm that employers tend to focus on 'softer' skills and behavioural qualities in the recruitment process, with a less prominent role played by formal qualifications. 9) They recognize such skills as communication, team-working, organization, and customer service. 10) No, there aren't.

10) Are the opinions of the employers as well as employees similar about the skill of the employees to demonstrate themselves at the interview? 11) On what issues the opinions of the employers as well as employees different? 12) In which aspects do they have different opinion about the role of IT technologies? 13)What factors play important role on the recruitment process? 14) Is it easy for young people to find the work during uncertain economic times? 15) Have you already decided what company you would like to work for?	11) The employers and employees have different view on the ability of the young people to demonstrate their qualities. They also have different opinions about the role of IT technologies. 12) When asked about the things they value most about young recruits, many employers mentioned their ability with computers. On the other hand, few young people mentioned this explicitly. 13) Such factors as the nature of the job, the type of employer (particularly size and sector), and the frequency with which the company recruits young people play important role on the recruitment process. 14) No, it isn't. Young people need to do more things than usual in order to find the job during uncertain economic times. 15) Not yet. But I think that maybe I will work for Sechenov University after the graduation.
